The Daily Press.

HONGKONG, OCTOBER 14TH, 1914.

CHINA is without doubt a most distressful country. Misfortune succeeds misfortune with discouraging regularity, and troubles fall like leaves in Vallombrosa. The country was recovering from the havoc and destruction wrought by the two revolutions when the floods came with their terrible loss of life and their attendant famine and disease. On top of these disasters has come the European war with its baneful effects on China, effects not limited to the shortage of funds but to the spilling over of the war into this country, and now the Government is faced with a sea of troubles produced by the German and Japanese belligerents. When it was realised that Japan in terms of her alliance with Great Britain would undertake operations against Kiaochow, fears were expressed that China, in her desire to preserve, so far as she could, her neutrality would provoke some conflict with the stronger Power. The presence of Chinese troops and Japanese troops in the same neighbourhood naturally justifified that fear, but fortunately China was well advised to remove her troops and reduce the possibility of any friction or conflict. Following up the same common sense view of the situation, China issued a proclamation that she would not be responsible for any infringement of neutrality within a certain area, the defined area being described as the war zone. Of course this action led to protests on the part of the German Minister, the allegation being that the Peking Government had not observed neutrality and by defining the war zone after the Japanese troops had landed had favoured the invaders. It was further argued that had the Germans been aware of this extended neutral zone they would have made use of it for purposes of defence by erecting fortifications. China replied courteously, but as the protests were repeated it was apparent that there was a growing reluctance on China's part to further argue the question, and the outcome of all these protests and replies is that it has been decided to refer the correspondence to Berlin. Since then the Germans have ceased to worry the Government. On the other hand, popular suspicion regarding Japan seems to have grown. This is most regrettable, as it is certain that neither Peking nor Tokyo wish for any estrangement. As a matter of fact, more cordial relations are desired, and it seemed as if these were likely to be developed by the new policy vis-à-vis China initiated on the arrival of the new Japanese Minister. Unfortunately another interruption has occurred. First of all, there were reports of excesses committed by the Japanese soldiery in Shantung, and, secondly, there was the alleged breach of faith on the part of Japan in conducting military operations beyond the scope of the war zone. Whether the incidents at Laichow which have irritated the Chinese could have been avoided altogether during military operations cannot very well be discussed at present; and the Peking authorities, while drawing the attention of the Tokyo Government to these reports, do not apparently feel disposed to make a great point of them meantime, although anxious to have an assurance that their people will not be made to suffer in the manner indicated by the reports. The second question, that of the breach of the limited neutrality of China and the extension of military operations on the part of Japan beyond the war zone, is more serious.

China's attitude is frankly one of intense disappointment. The Japanese view is that the Chinese Government has not correctly appreciated the situation.
When the delimitation of the area in which operations against Tsingtau should be freely allowed, was discussed, the Japanese Legation indicated that it had been instructed to demand an area which included Wieschen, but China objected to the inclusion of this city. The question was not further discussed, and the Japanese point to the fact that the proclamation by China of the war zone specially mentioned the territory eastwards of Wieschen. The Japanese say that the declaration was vague on this point, and as they had indicated that the inclusion of Wieschen in the scheme of their military operations would be necessary they felt that there was no infringement of neutrality in proceeding there. Japan in her reply to China's protest emphasises that the Shantung Railway is in the nature of public property under direct control of the German Government, and the fact that a section of the line runs west of Wieschen, in neutral territory, cannot alter the original status of the railway, which still remains German. As, therefore, this railway constitutes an "undivisible part of the Leased Territory of Kiaochow," Japan claims that in pursuance of her declaration of war against Germany she is quite justified in taking possession of the railway. While it is possible for quibblers to raise in connection with this contention some nice points of international law calculated to strengthen the suspicions of Japan's action that have been set up in the minds of a by no means uninfluential section of the Chinese in the North, a cool and dispassionate consideration of the whole question should satisfy any reasonable mind that China has nothing to fear from recognising what Japan regards as her military necessities in connection with the accomplishment of her design to completely demolish the enemy's base at Tsingtau. Japan has not only given solemn assurances to China on the subject, but she has repeated those assurances to the United States, and since the demolition of the enemy's base at Tsingtau is an operation which is undertaken by Japan in alliance with Great Britain, China has what practically amounts to an international guarantee for the fulfilment of the promises made to her by Japan before the actual hostilities commenced. Japan appreciates the wisdom and the necessity of standing well with China and would be only too anxious to avoid any unnecessary quarrel with her great neighbour. But Japan cannot afford to take the risk of the railway being used any further for the transport of German troops, stores and ammunition, and the Chinese Government would appear to have at length recognised the reasonableness of Japan's claim, and a solution has been found in Japan taking formal possession and China taking control of the traffic.

The export of rubber from the Straits Settlements, except to British, French, Belgian and Russian Black Sea ports, is prohibited.

Quarantine Regulations against Hongkong have been withdrawn by the governments of Netherlands India, Calcutta and Madras.

The Hon. Treasurer of the Alice Memorial and Affiliated Hospitals begs to acknowledge with thanks a donation of $10 by the Hon. Mr. J. H. Kemp to the funds of the hospitals.

The weekly return of communicable diseases to the 10th October shows that there were two Chinese cases of diphtheria and six cases of enteric fever (three British and the remainder Chinese), three being fatal. There were no cases of plague.

THE GYMKHANA GATE MONEY.

The Hon. Secretary states that the amount collected for the Prince of Wales Fund at the Gymkhana, being gross proceeds of tickets sold at the gate, is $482.50.

The majority of those attending were, as usual, Members or Ladies, entitled to free admission, who took tickets on this occasion, and no doubt will be pleased to see that the aggregate result of these small contributions is a substantial addition to the Fund.

THE PRICE OF PROVISIONS.

ANOTHER COMPROMISE FINED FOR EXCESSIVE CHARGES.

At the Magistracy yesterday, before Mr. C. D. Melbourne, Lai Wing, compromise of the Ye Cheong shop, 15, Victoria Street, was summoned for charging more than the maximum prices, fixed by a Proclamation by H.E. the Governor, for certain provisions supplied between the 11th and 29th September to Mr.
Duncan Clarke.

The Colonial Treasurer (Hon. Mr. E.
D. C. Wolfe) prosecuted, and said that this was rather a serious case, and asked that a heavy fine should be imposed.
Defendant had charged 20 cents a dozen for eggs, and 17 cents per lb. for soup-mat, whereas the Proclamation placed the price at 16 cents per lb. On Saturday he sent for the defendant, and had an interview with him, in the course of which he told him to reduce his prices in accordance with the second Proclamation.
He (Mr. Wolfe) gave him 48 hours in which to conform with the provisions of the Proclamation, and defendant undertook to carry out the law. On the following Monday, however, the defendant brought him a Dairy Farm price list, saying that he did not see why he should reduce his prices if the Dairy Farm did not.

Defendant said that he sold his goods according to the prices in the first Proclamation. The second came out afterwards and he pleaded ignorance of it.
His Worship thought a fine of $50 would meet the case.

THE DEEP WATER BAY PIRACY.

The dead bodies of two of the crew of the Yee Wo Hing junk, which was attacked by a band of armed robbers in Deep Water Bay on Sunday, have been brought to the Mortuary by the Water Police.

Additional particulars, furnished by a man named Chan Hing, show that a two-masted boat, somewhat resembling an oyster boat, came alongside. Fists on the junk, apprehending an attack by robbers, fired on the other boat, and the fire was returned. The men on the pirate vessel climbed aboard the junk. Chan Hing swam to the shore, about 200 yards distant, and remained there for about two hours.
A shout then went up that the robbers had departed, and Chan Hing returned to the pirated junk. He found two men lying dead, and two others wounded. The robbers, beside a haul of revolvers, rifles, powder and ammunition, took $97 in money, several bags of sugar, rolls of cotton cloth, and a quantity of Chinese medicine. The master of the junk and a cook were taken away for ransom.

KWANGTUNG BANKS.

The Governor and the Financial Commissioner of Kwangtung have jointly reported to the Government that it is not expedient to transfer the merchants' deposit money from the Kwangtung Official Bank to the Bank of China. They said the rates of interest of the two banks are different. The Kwang-tung Official Bank pays a higher interest to their patrons than the Bank of China, so that the transference will be disadvantageous to the depositors who may be induced to deposit their money in the Taiwan and other banks, and the consequence will be ruinous to both the Bank of China and the Kwangtung Official Bank. Peking Daily News.

NOTES FROM PEKING.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

PEKING, September 30th.
THE CONFUCIAN CEREMONY.

Undoubtedly the event of the week was the revival of the official worship of Confucius, which took place in the early hours of Monday morning. Though the public were not permitted to attend and no foreigners were allowed to be present, the unique ceremonial evoked no little interest in the capital and indeed throughout the country. There has been no suggestion that in performing the ceremony which was formerly performed by the Emperor, the President has been actuated by any ambitious motives. The action is regarded as right and proper on the part of the head of the nation.

The account of the ceremony is very interesting, if for no other reason than that for the time being the masterful President did as he was told by the Master of Ceremonies and kowtowed properly at the right time.
The whole route from the Presidential residence to the Temple of Confucius was lined by soldiers, but what is more significant is that His Excellency proceeded to the Temple in the Vice-President's steel-lined automobile and returned in a carriage. Evidently he is taking no risks.

PATRIOTIC PLAY.

A play which might be likened to "An Englishman's Home" has been produced in Peking, and is said to be very popular.
It is called a patriotic play and its object is to stimulate the interest of the people in the domestic loan being floated and to induce those who have not done so to take up bonds. Remarkable to relate, the heroes of this play are journalists. A band of these patriotic newspapermen in Peking assemble together and suggest the floating of the domestic loan. Subsequent acts show how various men were inclined to pool-pool the loan, and Act 6 depicts the "activity of the richa coolie of the King's family who persuades a number of prominent persons to attend the meeting to be held at the Hukuang Guild." Then comes the enthusiasm of all classes, women selling their ornaments, labourers investing their savings, and officials devoting their salaries to the purchase of the bonds.
Finally, the interest is paid on the bonds in the second year, a copper ring with the words "public interest" is given to each bondholder, and any one with such a ring is considered a patriot. Very childish, but very Chinese.

SUPPRESSING REBELS.

Whether there is any marked increase or not in the activity of would-be rebels there is certainly marked activity on the part of the Peking police in capturing suspects. One interesting development is that after the men have been tried and dismissed or punished according to their innocence or guilt a statement is issued by the authorities setting forth the circumstances in which the men were arrested and the punishment meted out to them.
Since I wrote last two lots of rebels have been executed. The first batch numbered six and the second three. Doubtless many of those who have paid the extreme penalty were really guilty, but the manner of their trial leaves something to be desired from a western point of view.

CHANGING CHINA.

That justice is occasionally administered in China is demonstrated by an interesting police-court report which relates that an ex-official, whose son is said to occupy a prominent position in the present administration, has been sentenced to three months' imprisonment for having given orders to his concubine to beat a slave girl, who was severely maltreated.
The defendant has appealed against the sentence.

PROTECTING FOREIGNERS.

The police are making a careful census of all foreigners living in the city, the object being that adequate protection may be extended to them all. It may be an expression of China's anxiety not to get into further trouble, or it may be "look-see pigskin."

The British military authorities in Peking are not slack in their duties in this respect, and the location of all Britishers outside the Legation Quarter is being noted by soldiers allotted to the several districts.

FOREIGN JOURNALIST'S DEATH.

No little regret was expressed last week on the death of Mr. John O'Shea, a journalist of many years' standing in the Far East. Mr. O'Shea, who was proprietor and editor of the Shanghai Times, came to the capital some two months ago, to recuperate, but after a month here he had to go into hospital to undergo an operation. He never regained his strength afterwards, and he gradually sank, passing away last Thursday. He was laid to rest the following day in the British Cemetery, where, it is interesting to note, is buried another British journalist, Mr. T. W. Bowly, Times correspondent, who met his death during the operations of 1850.

GERMAN RESERVISTS ARRIVE HERE.

Some forty men, belonging to the N.D.L. steamers running out of Bangkok have found their way here in German military uniforms. They tried to enter Tsingtau, but were prevented, and so they came on to the German Legation here.
They are all sea-going men, men who have been trained in the navy, and they do not take kindly to the military uniforms which they have now to wear.

THE WAR.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

THE GREAT BATTLE IN FRANCE.

FINE ACHIEVEMENT BY FRENCH MARINES.

ALLIES CONTINUE TO GAIN GROUND.

LONDON, October 12th.
5.30 p.m.

A Paris communiqué says:—Cavalry actions on our Left continue in the districts of La Bassée and Hazebrouck. The enemy between Arras and the Oise attempted several attacks, which, however, failed, notably at Lassigny and Roye. We made some progress in the Centre; on the right bank of the Aisne, and east-south-east of Verdun. 6.40 p.m.

A further Paris communiqué states:—

The enemy made a night attack in the Vosges, near St. Die, but were repulsed.

The flag taken yesterday belonged to the 49th Pomeranian Regiment.

A fierce engagement took place on the 9th and 10th inst. when a brigade of French Marines killed 200 Germans and took 500 prisoners.
Our losses were only nine killed and 40 wounded. LONDON, October 13th.
2.05 a.m.

An official statement issued in Paris at 11 p.m. says:—

No details are available regarding the violent attacks on our front.
We have gained ground at many points and lost none whatever.

GERMAN AERIAL ATTACK ON PARIS.

FORMATION OF A DEFENSIVE AIR CORPS.

LONDON, October 12th.
5.30 p.m.

A Paris communiqué says:—An aeroplane dropped six bombs on the city to-day. It is being pursued by five French aviators.
A defensive Air Corps is being formed in Paris.

The damage created to the Notre Dame consists of six small beams in the roof being smashed, the northern transept and part of the roof torn away, and the frame of the clock pierced by bullets.

GERMAN SUBMARINES ATTACK RUSSIAN CRUISERS.

THE "PALLADA" SUNK AND CREW PERISH.

LONDON, October 13th.

It has been officially announced in Petrograd that German submarines on Saturday attacked the cruiser Admiral Makarov which was searching for a suspicious fishing-boat. The submarines fired torpedoes at the Admiral Makarov but they missed her.

On Sunday the German submarines attacked the cruisers Pallada and Bayan which were patrolling the Baltic. Both immediately fired heavily, but one submarine torpedoed the Pallada which sank, all the crew perishing.

[The Pallada had a displacement of 7,000 tons, with an indicated horsepower of 16,500. The vessel was launched at St. Petersburg (New Admiralty) in 1903, but was not completed until 1910. Her armament was 2 8-in., 8 6-in., 20 12-pr., 4 6-pr. and 5 torpedo tubes sub.). She had a speed of 21.0 knots, and her official complement is given as 373 officers and men.]

THE OPERATIONS IN BELGIUM.

TWENTY-FOUR FORTS ON THE SCHELDT RESISTING ENERGETICALLY.

LONDON, October 12th.
6 p.m.

A Paris communiqué issued in the afternoon says:—Twenty-four of the Antwerp forts on both banks of the Scheldt are resisting energetically.
The Germans as yet only occupy the suburbs.

GERMANS OCCUPY GHENT.

LONDON, October 13th.
5.25 a.m.

An Amsterdam telegram states that the Germans have occupied Ghent.

The Uhlans have arrived at Selzacte, half way between Antwerp and Bruges.

DESPERATE FIGHTING IN EAST PRUSSIA.

LONDON, October 12th.

Fighting in East Prussia continues with the greatest desperation.
Artillery duels continue with the enemy's columns on the Vistula.

An official statement issued at Petrograd says that fighting has begun on the left bank of the Vistula in the direction of Ivangorod and Warsaw.

PRESIDENT WILSON AND PEACE.

LONDON, October 13th.

President Wilson announces that he has made no direct peace representations to any of the Powers since his original Note tendering good offices.

Major-General Rawlinson remains at the War Office to assist Lord Kitchener.

Gambia has given ten thousand pounds sterling to the Prince of Wales' Fund.

Prince Henry of the Netherlands visited the wounded British bluejackets at Ymuiden.

The Archbishop of Rheims says only the walls of the edifice and the great organ are intact.

It is stated from Petrograd that German and Austrian prisoners at Moscow have been separated to prevent fighting.

General Joffre has declared there was no French observation post at Rheims Cathedral, as asserted by the Germans.

A Bordeaux message says the Germans at Aubecourt broke open the Poincaré family vault and buried three German soldiers in it.

Lord Kitchener states that no presents of wines or spirits can be accepted for the troops at the front and that none will be forwarded.

A Rome message says special hospitals are being prepared in Austria and Hungary to accommodate patients suffering from cholera, which is spreading.

Major-Generals Colin Mackenzie and Morland command respectively the Scottish and Light Divisions of the new Army, of which the second 100,000 is nearly complete.

In exchange for the motor cars seized in France, the Germans have given papers, payable by the French Government, presumably on of the indemnity which the Germans expect to collect.

The Captain of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse has arrived at New York. Interviewed he said: "If all the British ships shoot as straight as the Hightower I am sorry for our poor fellows in the North Sea."

A Sydney telegram says a patriotic concert arranged by Madame Melba realised £1,390 sterling. Madame Melba auctioned several coins, a farthing fetch- ing thirty pounds. A Japanese flag brought fifty-five guineas.

The slowness of the German operations at Antwerp has been explained to be due to the fact that the siege guns, throwing projectiles of 2,500 pounds, are of such enormous size that the concrete beds where they are placed take weeks to set hard.

The stables on the Berlin race course have been transformed into a military lazaretto, and the race course restaurant has been made into a hospital. All the hospitals at Spandau, in the suburbs of Berlin, are overcrowded with wounded.

A New York telegram states that, according to a British report, the flanking movement of the Allies has been pushed on with great energy, which has entailed heavy losses. Hundreds of French infantry were mown down by the machine-guns of the enemy.

The following scale of daily rations for German prisoners of war in England has been approved by the British military authorities:—1lb. of bread or 1lb. biscuits; 1lb. fresh meat or 1lb. preserved meat; 3oz. cheese; 1oz. tea; 1lb. jam; 3oz. sugar; 1oz. salt; 1/2oz. mustard; 1/2oz. pepper; 1lb. fresh vegetables. With this, 2oz. of tobacco a week.

A special edition of the German newspaper Forwerts says that it is unwise to underestimate the danger of war lasting a long time, and adds that unemployment is already afflicting hundreds of thousands. The results of measures against the spectre of unemployment are very poor. This, says the paper, is the most vulnerable point and it must therefore utter a warning against self-confidence.

Wounded Frenchmen relate that when the Germans bombarded Fort Troyon the French did not reply. The Commandant fired two carts of straw. The Germans, seeing the blaze, believed the fort had been abandoned and advanced. When at close quarters the French attacked, resulting in a thousand Germans being killed.

Belgian engineers showed exceptional gallantry in destroying the bridges across the Gethe at the last moment in the face of terrible artillery fire, says the "Express" Brussels correspondent. The engineers, unable to get out their knives to cut the Bickford cord of the mines, bit it through with their teeth, blowing up the bridge under the very feet of the Germans.

A very good story of "intelligent anticipation" is quoted by the Hatfield Gazette. At his last interview with the Russian military authorities before the war Prince Hohenlohe, the Austrian Military Attaché, expressed surprise that the Russians should be requisitioning so many automobiles. "Your roads are too bad," he remarked. "But yours are good," was the response.

Rudyard Kipling, who lives near Brighton, on the south coast, was arrested as a suspicious person while taking one of his regular constitutional along the sea front. He entered into the fun of the thing; in fact he was delighted at being mistaken for a possible German spy, inasmuch as it proved to him in a most convincing manner that a vigilant watch is being kept. Kipling was detained for some time, during which he was searched; but eventually his identity was established, and he was set free with apologies.

Among the French wounded being cared for in Paris hospitals it is frequently remarked that the wounds inflicted by the small-calibre German bullet were not painful. Many men were not aware they had been hit until after the engagement was over. One soldier declared that he did not know he had been hurt until the following morning, when he discovered a ball had gone through his arm, leaving no outward indication except two dark spots on the skin, such as might be made by a lead pencil.

BELGIA BAR-LASS.

The following poem recently appeared in The Times:

The night was still; the King sat with the Queen, She sang, her women spun; a peaceful scene.

Sudden, wild echoes shake the castle wall;
Their faces come crashing through the distant hall.

They rush like thunder down the gallery floor.
See! Someone has stol'n the staple from the door.

No bar to hold the bolt, no stick, no stave!
Nothing: an open door—an open grave!

Then Catherine Bar-Lass thrust her naked arm (A girl's arm white as milk, and round and warm)

Right through the loops from which the bolt was gone;
"Twill hold (she said) until they break the bone.

"My King, you have one instant to prepare!"
She said no more, because the thrust was there.

Of: have I heard the tale of Scotland's King,
The poet, and Kate and the Bar-Lass; men will sing

For aye the dead one moment brings to birth (Such moments are the reason of our earth).

Brave Belgium, Bar-Lass of the Western world, Who, when the treacherous Prussian tyrant hurled

His hordes against our peace, thrust a sight hand, So firm, to bolt our portals and withstand.

Whatever prove the glory of the affair, Thine arm, thy heart, thine act have won the day!

MARY DUGLAS.
